A little number after a recipe in a menu means that the recipe will be found both in the booklet of that number and in the corresponding 100 series, that is, 6 and 106.

Modern illustrations are of the greatest value to those who take pride in learning new methods of preparing food. Even more than the printed word, pictures depict clearly and accurately modern procedure and the finished product. For the beautiful and instructive ones in this book we are deeply grateful to:

Let's Produce Everything We Can

In the everyday life of A NATION AT PEACE, each of us works at the task best suited to our abilities, then exchanges that labor for the results of another's. Thus we secure everything we need for a full life and some overflow.

In A WORLD AT WAR, this exchange is so interfered with that there is no assurance that we shall be able to exchange our work for the fundamentals of living: food, clothing and shelter.

For that reason WE MUST PRODUCE some or all of these ourselves.

Even if farming was part of early experiences, it is wise to seek up-to-the-minute advice before making a fresh start. No country on the globe has at its disposal such a wealth of scientific and practical information for the producers of food, fats, fibre and feed as is available to the resident in the United States of America. From the U. S. Department of Agriculture, through the State Universities down to the County Farm Advisor, there will be put into one's hands bulletin after bulletin telling exactly what to do, when and how to do it. This is true of the feeding and housing of animals as well as the growing of gardens and orchards and the keeping of bees. Prospective beekeepers will contact the Division of Bee Culture, Beltsville Research Center, Beltsville, Md., while those wishing to conserve wild life or restock fishing waters will be equally well served by the Fish and Wild Life Service of the Department of the Interior.

Almost EVERYONE WILL HAVE A GARDEN of some dimensions this year, and many will expand all previous efforts. It is imperative, no matter how much is raised, THAT NOTHING BE WASTED. If you find your family cannot eat it all, or you do not need all you can or preserve, look around for a neighbor or a family, who can use the excess to advantage. If these are amply provided for THERE IS ALWAYS THE HOSPITAL or the Children's Home with empty jars to fill. Their ration points need stretching too.

Where space is available, there are several small animals that CAN BE PRODUCED FOR FOOD on the home grounds. Many find it possible and desirable to keep a cow. One animal adds to the milk and butter, but not often to the meat supply. A poultry yard (producing eggs as well) and a rabbit hutch are the simplest and often the most profitable sources of additional meat and fat. If there is a pond, ducks and geese may be added with advantage.

ADDITIONAL FATS AND OILS will largely be what you render yourself. Those who live in the peanut growing country will find it profitable to grow goobers for the oil that can be pressed from them. Remember to return to your butcher all fats and oils that have served you well and are ready for discard.

Fortunately for this country the last several years have seen many LAKES AND STREAMS GENEROUSLY RESTOCKED with fish. All are protected by State laws. Be conscientious about using all you take. If the catch is large, SMOKE OR PICKLE THE EXCESS for use later in the season.

This is certainly the time when group action can be most EFFECTIVE IN PRODUCING FOOD. Neighbors may be able to produce more of everything than could any one alone. Such equipment as smoke houses should be used on a cooperative basis. Pressure cookers ought to be in use every day by some one of the group and so should kraut cutters and other pieces.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT MEAT

Those families whose habit it is to eat little meat will be amply supplied by the most severe rationing. Those who like a generous amount of meat will need to make definite plans if the needs of every member of the family are to be met. Perhaps some individuals could reduce their portion with benefit. Men, and especially women, in later middle age might be happier for the replacement of some of the red meats with fowl, fish, eggs or cheese. This will add some to the ration for the hard-working bread winner and the growing children, especially those in late adolescence when appetites are keen from bodies growing and developing rapidly. Grow-ups will need to see to it that the small children get their full share, lest the hungrier older ones crowd them out.

VEAL BIRDS

- 1½ pounds veal steak
- ½ cup soft bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons fat, melted
- 2 tablespoons grated onion
- ⅛ teaspoon each sage, nutmeg and pepper
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup water (about)
- ¼ cup flour
- ¼ cup fat
- 1 cup milk

Wipe meat; remove skin, fat and bone; cut into 6 pieces 4x2 inches. Combine crumbs, fat, onion and seasonings. Add just enough water to moisten. Spread stuffing over center of each piece of meat. Roll and fasten with toothpicks or tie with string. Dredge with flour; brown in hot fat; add milk. Cover; simmer 30 minutes, or until tender. Serves 6. Instead of milk use brown gravy or white sauce.

Use beef instead of veal.

Variety meats need few ration points and the family that uses them generously will be on the plus side of the health ledger, since all of these have valuable vitamins and minerals, not always found in muscle meats. Tripe is now known to be a preventative and cure for some anemias.

One of the important points to remember in "meat stretching" is that meat provides protein for building tissue. Whatever "stretchers" are used must also provide protein in some form. Hence, use fish, chicken, eggs or cheese as alternatives or where possible in combination. If vegetables or cereals are used, be sure they supply protein. Corn, beans, peas, soybeans and Limas and the whole grains are safer than cereals whose cargo is largely starch. If others are used, be open-eyed and realize that they are substitutes and not protein alternatives.

If there is room and facilities, develop a victory poultry yard and a victory rabbit hutch. Poultry and rabbits will yield meat and the hen house provides eggs. Your Farm Advisor, State University or the U. S. Department of Agriculture will advise you on details and your local situation. But let's be awake to the fact that we are raising FOOD, not just filling in our spare time. Perhaps this is the place for group planning and producing, one family raising the garden, another poultry and a third rabbits; pooling their expenses and results.

Veal birds with savory stuffing save ration points and please the whole family too

PRECOOKING BRAINS AND SWEETBREADS

Brains and sweetbreads must be precooked as soon after purchasing as possible. Remove membranes. Simmer 20 minutes in water to which 1 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar have been added to each quart of water used. If not to be used at once, chill in the acidulated water in which they were cooked. Prepare for serving as desired. Brains and sweetbreads may be used in the same way.

BROILED SWEETBREADS

Salt, Pepper

Cut sweetbreads into halves crosswise, sprinkle with salt and pepper and broil in hot broiler about 10 minutes, turning to brown both sides. Spread with butter or bacon drippings and serve at once. Serves 6.

BRAINS AND SCRAMBLED EGGS

1 pound brains, precooked
3 tablespoons fat
¼ cup minced parsley
2 teaspoons grated onion

KIDNEYS—Use 1 pound kidneys instead of brains.

TRIPE

Fresh tripe is always cooked before you get it, but requires additional cooking. Pickled tripe requires a shorter cooking time. Cook in water to cover and simmer until tender, at least 1 hour. Pickled tripe is soaked in salted water 15 minutes before cooking to remove vinegar. Serve in Creole or Spanish sauce, or dip in batter and sauté.

PHILADELPHIA PEPPER POT

4 tablespoons fat
2 quarts soup stock or 2 quarts water and 6 bouillon cubes

Add heart, onions and liquid to vegetables. Add pepper, tapioca, Worcestershire sauce and remaining salt. Heat to boiling. Turn into greased casserole. Roll biscuit dough ¼ inch thick; make slits to allow steam to escape. Fit over mixture in casserole. Bake in hot oven (450°F.) 20 minutes, or until browned. Serves 6.

IN RICE RING—Serve meat and vegetable mixture in a ring of cooked rice instead of baking in a casserole with biscuits.

TONGUE

Tongue is sold fresh, pickled or corned, and smoked. Wash tongue thoroughly in warm water and remove blood vessels and clotted blood from fresh tongue. Soak pickled or smoked tongue several hours before cooking. After tongue is cooked tender, remove skin and cut away roots. If it is to be served cold, allow it to cool in the water in which it was cooked.

FRESH TONGUE—Cover with water, add 1 teaspoon salt for each quart of water and simmer until tender. Allow 3 to 4 hours for large beef tongues, 1 to 1½ hours for pork, lamb or veal.

PICKLED TONGUE

- ¼ teaspoon saltpeter
- 2 quarts water
- 1 cup salt
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 cloves garlic
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- ½ tablespoon mixed spices
- 1 beef tongue

Dissolve saltpeter in ½ cup warm water. Add remaining water, salt, sugar, garlic (sliced), paprika and spices. Place tongue in crock and cover with liquid. Cover with plate and weight down so that tongue remains covered. Let stand 3 weeks, turning occasionally. Cook as above.

You can match the size of the tongue or heart you buy to your family's taste

WHEN FUEL IS SCARCE, WHAT THEN?

We'll all need to save fuel and that means cooking as many dishes as possible with the same amount of heat. Four principal ways are available:

1. Meals cooked in the oven
2. Meals cooked in one burner steamers (page 22)
3. Meals cooked in Dutch oven or casserole (page 23)
4. Fireless cooker (pages 24-25)

An oven meal should use the oven to capacity. Choose all dishes that cook at the same temperature and for the same length of time. It is usually best not to include quick-cooking vegetables and desserts, but if you must, they may be added later. Vegetables take about three times as long to cook in the oven as on the top of the range. For steaming vegetables use  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup water and a covered pan. Uncover utensils to brown. Desserts with sirup in the pan should be placed on the upper rack.

Steamers are fuel savers as a number of different foods may be cooked over one unit of heat at the same time. A braised meat, vegetables and a dessert may be cooked at one time. Served with a green salad and a bread this makes a complete meal. This method of cooking is adapted to foods which require moist heat. ## FIRELESS COOKER

The fireless cooker offers a way to cook—without watching—foods requiring long slow cooking. A fireless cooker may be made out of materials on hand or with a small expenditure of money. Start with a sturdy packing box; 16 x 16 x 20 inches is a good size. Make a close fitting cover and hinge it onto one side of the box. Screw 4 small cans of uniform height into the bottom of the box (Figure 1). Place 2 inches of insulating material on bottom of box (Figure 2.) The insulating material may be rock wool, glass fiber, sawdust, Spanish moss or hay. If heated stones are used, a fireproof material (rock wool or glass fiber) must be used. Make a cushion 3 to 5 inches deep, large enough to fit over inset container. Fill loosely with insulating material so that it will be soft enough to fit down around sides of inset container.

INSET CONTAINER—Must be metal with a tightly fitting lid; and should be 6 inches shorter and 6 inches narrower than the outer box. Place on top of insulating material (Figure 3). Fasten inner container in place by nailing 4 wooden blocks  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inches thick and 3 inches wide cut to fit snugly between the outer and inner container (Figure 4). The blocks should be about 2 inches from the top of inset container. Fill space with insulating material (Figure 5).

COLLAR—Cut a collar of wood, pressed board or battleship linoleum to fit as snugly as possible between outside and inset container (Figure 5). Fill in cracks with a calking compound (Figure 6).

The man of the house will have the time of his life building you this fireless cooker from a packing box

HEATING STONE—Either soapstones or concrete stones are satisfactory. Before using soapstones temper them by placing in a warm oven (250°F.) for about 24 hours. Concrete stones may be made at home. These must also be tempered before using by placing in boiling water 15 minutes and allowed to dry for about 2 days. It is not necessary to use heated stones, although they cook the food more rapidly and keep it hot for a longer time. Two stones are needed, one for the bottom and the other for the top of the pans. Heat the stones on top of a range until a little flour sprinkled evenly on the top browns in 15 seconds. Place in inner container (Figure 7).

UTENSILS —Select pans which have flat bottoms and tops, straight sides and tight fitting covers. Heat food in pans to boiling before placing in cooker. Place pans on hot stone, place another stone on top of pan lids, cover inset container, place insulating cushion on top and close with cover of outside container (Figure 8).

USING THE COOKER —Foods best cooked in the cooker are cereals, dried beans, soybeans, and the less tender cuts of meat. The food must be boiling before placing in cooker and the stones must be hot. The closed cooker needs no further care until the end of these cooking periods:

Overnite 4-6 hr. 2-4 hr.

Fruits and Vegetables the Year 'Round

Neither money nor ration stamps will produce food this year if there is not enough to go around. Only good soil, the right seeds and plenty of spade work will give us all the necessary fruits and vegetables for vigorous health. This means planting a garden and tending it well, securing all the professional advice possible from Garden Committees, Farm advisors or your State University. But it also means taking over a neglected orchard or berry patch and with similar advice, pruning and spraying it into lush production. Then see to it that nothing goes to waste. Use all the fresh produce you can and preserve or store the remainder. If you have too much, remember there may be a war wife in your block whose working hours make it impossible for her to grow a garden.

FATS AND HOW TO GET THEM

With rationing of butter, shortenings and oils, the homemaker will be faced with the necessity of making use of fat from other sources. When facilities are available, many will keep a cow and make their own butter. Before making the decision, consult your County Agent, Farm Advisor or State College of Agriculture.

Additional fats will come from rendering poultry and meat fats. Drippings from bacon and salt pork have long been used by many homemakers as an incidental flavor. They will now be rendered carefully and stored for use.

The milder flavored fats can be used as spreads as well as shortenings for pies, cookies, sauces, cakes and for shallow frying. Stretching butter flavor by reintroducing milk solids (page 34) doubles the bulk of butter. Because the fat is reduced one-half it cannot be used for frying or greasing pans, but may be used as shortening. Nutritionally this must be made up with fats such as nuts, fat meat, salad oil, peanut butter or avocado.

Render the fat from a plump chicken like this and you will have a fine shortening

RENDERING FAT CHICKEN

Cut the fat from a fat hen into small pieces and wash well. Drain and add cold water to cover and simmer. Water is added to prevent fat from browning. When water has completely boiled away and fat begins to fry, remove from heat and strain through a cloth-lined colander into clean jars. Cool and store the fat in a cool place. Reheat residue for cracklings. These may be used in place of crisp bacon.

Render MEAT fat the same way.

GOOSE

Singe plucked geese, wash in a solution of baking soda with a cloth or soft brush, enclose in a clean paper bag and chill well or freeze so fat will be firm.

To skin: Use a sharp, small knife and cut the skin down the backbone, around the base of the neck and wings and around the first joint of the legs. Then using a small dull knife, lift the layer of fat off the flesh underneath, holding the skin and fat in the left hand while the knife in the right continues to separate the fat from the meat. In some places the layer of connective tissue makes the process very easy. In other places the fat is all but attached to the muscle and care must be taken not to cut into the meat. As the pieces become too large to handle cut off and drop into a kettle containing cold water. There should be just enough water to cover all the fat. Proceed as for chicken.

Reduce the cracklings until brown. These, well salted, are served as appetizers. Like other cracklings they may be used in baking or as garnish. Fat remaining from cracklings should be stored separately, since it has a slightly "browned" flavor. Save this for meat cookery.

Interior fat: Break the body at the joint below the ribs, remove the entrails with their envelope of fat, and with great care remove the envelope and the fat that surrounds the giblets. This is then rendered separately, and used in meat cookery when a clear fat is wanted. In all cases, a slice of uncooked potato or fresh bread in the kettle, will carry off any odor or flavor. Label all jars distinctly and keep in a cold place.

ECONOMY SPREAD

- ½ pound butter
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- ½ household rennet tablet
- ½ tablespoon cold water

Break butter up into small pieces and allow to stand in a warm place until soft, but not melted. Add salt to milk and heat to lukewarm. Dissolve rennet tablet in cold water and add to lukewarm milk. Stir a few seconds. Keep at room temperature undisturbed until set. Add 4 drops butter coloring, if desired, and rennet custard to softened butter. Beat with a rotary beater until thoroughly blended. Pack into a container and chill until firm. Makes 1 pound.

BUTTER SPREAD

- ½ pound butter
- ½ tablespoon unflavored gelatin
- 1 cup milk
- ½ teaspoon salt

Break butter up into small pieces and allow to stand in a warm place until soft, but not melted. Soften gelatin in ¼ cup of milk. Dissolve completely over hot water. Add dissolved gelatin and salt to remaining milk. Add milk slowly, about 2 tablespoons at a time, to butter; beat constantly with a rotary beater until completely blended. Add 4 drops butter coloring, if desired, when beating in the milk. Pack in a container and chill until firm. Makes 1 pound.

Omit gelatin and reduce salt to ⅛ teaspoon. Use ¾ cup evaporated milk instead of milk listed above.

The Aladdin touch — whip rennet (or gelatin) and milk into your butter and make two pounds out of one

TO PREPARE
AVOCADOS

Avocados should be allowed to soften at room temperature, protected from bruises, before using. If fruit is to be served in halves, cut it and remove seed with a twist of the fingers. If served in slices cut in the shell then slip the knife between the meat and the shell. The meat will loosen and slip out. To be at their best, avocados should have a "buttery" texture. They are so high in fat that they make a large contribution to the diet as a substitute for butter.

AVOCADO SALAD

- 1 avocado
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- Salt
- Watercress, romaine or lettuce
- 3 cups avocado balls or cubes
- 1/2 cup French dressing

- 1 cup diced asparagus tips.
- 1 cup diced tomatoes.
- 1/2 cup diced lobster or shrimp and 1/2 cup chopped celery.
- 1/3 cup shredded anchovies, 1/3 cup pearl onions, and 1/3 cup chopped celery.
- 1/2 cup diced pickled beets and 1/2 cup pickled onions.

AVOCADO SPREAD

- 1 cup sieved avocados
- 1/4 teaspoon onion salt
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoons lemon juice
- Few drops Tabasco sauce

Combine all ingredients; blend thoroughly. Spread on crackers, toast or potato chips or use for stuffing celery. Makes 1 cup. Finely chopped olives, hard-cooked eggs, pickle relish, green pepper or capers may be added if desired. Mix with an equal amount of peanut butter.

STUFFED AVOCADOS

- 3 avocados
- Lemon juice
- Salt
- 3 (3-ounce) packages cream cheese

Fill halves with cheese mixture and garnish with pimiento. Chill thoroughly. Serve with French dressing. Allow 1 filled oval to each serving. Serves 6.

Those who can, will serve avocado frequently to cover the fat shortage pleasantly

GUACAMOLE CON TOCINO —

To above mixture add 3 hard-cooked eggs and 6 stuffed olives, chopped. Rub salad bowl with cut garlic clove and garnish with bacon curls.

COOKED SOYBEANS

To shell green soybeans, boil in the pods 5 minutes. Cool and shell. Then the shelled beans may be steamed or boiled in salted water. The time of cooking depends upon the variety. Some cook as quickly as green peas; others more like Lima beans.

Green soybeans are sometimes cooked and served in the pods. The pods must be washed thoroughly. After washing, drop pods into boiling water to cover and cook until beans are tender.

Serve by dipping in melted butter like artichoke leaves. The melted butter may be seasoned with soy or Worcestershire sauce.

Dried soybeans should be soaked overnight before cooking. After soaking, drain, add fresh water and simmer 3 to 4 hours, or until tender.

One pound soybeans, in the pods, equals  $\frac{1}{2}$  pound shelled or from 1 to  $1\frac{1}{3}$  cups.

SOYBEAN CASSEROLE

- $\frac{1}{2}$  cup diced salt pork
- 2 cups chopped celery
- 3 tablespoons minced onion
- 3 tablespoons minced green pepper
- $\frac{1}{3}$  cup flour
- $1\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoons salt
- 2 cups milk
- 2 cups chopped cooked soybeans
- $\frac{1}{2}$  cup bread crumbs
- $\frac{1}{2}$  cup grated cheese

Brown salt pork, add celery, onion and green pepper; cook until browned. Gradually add flour and salt to milk, stirring until smooth. Add to salt pork and heat to boiling. ## WHIPPED CREAM

- 2 tablespoons milk

ECONOMY —

- ½ rennet tablet
- ½ tablespoon cold water
- 1 cup 18% cream

Crush and dissolve rennet tablet in cold water. Heat cream, stirring constantly until warm. Test a drop on the inside of wrist frequently. When warm (110°F.) not hot, remove at once from heat. Add dissolved tablet and stir quickly for a few seconds only. Let stand until firm, about 10 minutes. Chill overnight and whip in a chilled bowl with a chilled beater. Makes about 2 cups.

EVAPORATED MILK—Chill milk by packing unopened can in ice and salt, or pouring milk into a bowl surrounded by ice and salt. Never dilute milk to be whipped. If an automatic refrigerator is available, pour the milk into a freezing tray and chill until fine ice crystals begin to form around the edges. Pour milk into an icy cold bowl and whip rapidly with an icy cold beater. Do not whip more than 1 cup of milk at a time. If milk fails to whip, it is not cold enough; chill again and rewhip. Lemon juice added to the whipped milk keeps it stiff. Use two tablespoons lemon juice to each cup of milk used. Continue whipping only long enough to blend in lemon juice. Volume is increased about three times.

If a stiffer whipped cream is desired, gelatin may be added. Scald 1 cup evaporated milk; soften ½ teaspoon gelatin in 2 teaspoons cold water; add to milk and chill thoroughly; then whip rapidly. Sugar and vanilla may be added.

How Would You Like Some Bees?

The Honey Bee has always had an enthusiastic group of friends, admirers and keepers for the food it produces, for its social and industrial organization and for the important part it plays in fertilizing the growing crops.

In a world at war, the first and the last are no mean contributions to the sum total of forces at work.

Honey is and has always been accounted a valuable sugar, and today when others are scarce, every ounce that can be added to the common store is so much gain. For the family that is attempting to be self-sustaining in this crisis a beehive is rather a foregone conclusion; it may even be an additional source of income. But many persons without such ideal surroundings are successful beekeepers and many more undoubtedly will become such.

Some city apartment dwellers have managed to be quite successful with the busy little bodies especially when they are near a park or neighbors' gardens.

Certainly back yard beekeeping has much in its favor and any sizable garden with a sunny corner somewhat sheltered from high winds will make a happy home for your honey hoarders.

While you are thinking about it write to the Department of Agriculture's Division of Bee Culture, Beltsville Research Center, Beltsville, Maryland and ask for their bulletin called "Information about Bee Culture." This will give you the advice a beginner needs together with a list of the accredited Bee Supply Houses in your vicinity and a list of other available bulletins and books. They will tell you that your initial cost will be $18-20 for 1 hive and the necessary equipment to operate. The time to start your hive is in the spring and they advise that you consult your local Farm Advisor or your State Agricultural College for advice about local conditions. With ordinary luck expenses last only ten days. From then on the bees work for you and only ask that you share the fruits of their labor with them.

Improve each shining hour
And gather honey all the day
From every opening flower

TRY SOME NEW DRINKS

Many new drinks will comfort the tea and coffee enthusiast, among them maté and the many fruit and vegetable juices increasingly popular in recent years. Some of these deserve to remain permanent friends.

GET THE MOST FROM YOUR COFFEE

Buy coffee as you need it or else it becomes stale.

Keep coffee in a tightly covered container.

Use level measurements and make only the amount of coffee you intend to serve.

Use the correct grind for the method of preparation used. That is, if a "drip" coffee maker is used, use coffee ground for "drip" method. Generally, "drip" grind is the best all-purpose grind.

Brew coffee carefully.

Add a few grains of salt to coffee when it is being prepared. Many believe this increases the flavor. Coffee stretchers are roasted chicory, legumes or cereals. Use with coffee as directed. Do not buy coffee with the stretcher added as you will not be getting your fair share of coffee.

MATÉ

Maté is a beverage similar to tea, made from the roasted leaves of a South American tree. It has a refreshing and stimulating effect similar to that of tea and coffee but contains less caffeine and tannin and has no astringent qualities. The flavor is heavier than tea with a floral bouquet.

PREPARE MATÉ like tea, using only an earthenware or glass container for brewing. Let steep 5 minutes, then remove leaves at once. Do not boil. Strain and serve. Sugar, cream, lemon or crushed mint leaves may be served with maté.

ICE MATÉ is prepared like tea.
